What! Snow Here?

Test of Strength

South Africa Braces to Smash Negro Bus and Beer Boycott

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South Africa's color conscious government braced today to smash a spreading bus and beer boycott by tens of thousands of Negroes in restless slumtowns that ring Johannesburg and Pretoria.

A trial of strength appears imminent between white authority and the Negro people in the industrial heartland of this British Commonwealth country. It seemed likely also to signal a new phase of tension between South Africa's jittery whites and restless non-whites.

The Negro boycott of buses is in its fourth week. It began as a protest against a penny increase in fares charged by the Public Utility Transportation Corporation for the nine-mile ride into the city from Negro townships.

The boycott was launched around the slogan "Azikhwelwa," which in the vernacular means "we will not ride."

For boycotters, Monday was typical. More than 40,000 rose before dawn to make the nine-mile hike to city jobs. Among them were old men, ailing women and children.

PICKETS OUT

Pickets paced regular bus stops. Sympathetic white motorists often stop to give weary boycotters lifts, in defiance of watching police who note the car numbers.

For the last 10 days a new word has been whispered in Johannesburg townships.

It is "Abuphuzwa" which means "we will not drink."

Negroes began a boycott Monday of the main municipal beer hall in downtown Johannesburg in sympathy with the bus boycott. This movement is expected to spread to other municipal beer halls, which earn for the city nearly $3,000,000 a yar.

As word spread that beer halls were to be empty, there was rejoicing among the "shebeen queens" and the so-called "aunties" who illicitly brew liquor in non-white townships. Excitedly, they doubled and trebeled their output. In Orlando, near Johannesburg, the illicit brewers—most are women—decided to halve the price of brew as a token of encouragement to boycotters.

Police carried out raids in the western areas of Johannesburg in quest of bootleggers.

The intention of Prime Minister J. G. Strijdom's government to smash the boycott movement was made known last week by Transport Minister Ben Schoeman.

The undisguised fear of the Strijdom government is that any concessions might enshrine the boycott technique as an effective political weapon for voteless non-whites. In time, the government feels, such a weapon in the hands of Negroes would enable them to challenge white authority.

Cold Shoulder for King

New York Set To Snub Saud

KING SAUD

NEW YORK (UP)—The mayor of New York today decreed a city-wide cold shoulder for Saudi Arabia's King Saud when he arrives in the U.S. today as President Eisenhower's official guest.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner said Saud would be unwelcome in New York City because he is anti-Jewish, anti-Catholic and the ruler of a "slave state."

"He's not the kind of person we want to recognize," Wagner said. "I'm for what the people stand for. I don't care whether it's diplomatic or not."

That means there will be no blasts of ship sirens, no fireboat sprays, no handshake from the city's official greeter, no ticker-tape parade up Broadway, no key to the city, no official city lunch.

The king, in short, will be ignored by New York City officials and by Gov. Averell Harriman, all Democrats.

RED CARPET

In Washington, where an unprecedented red carpet welcome is scheduled for Saud, state department officials were silent about Wagner's refusal of hospitality, which came at a time when the U.S. was about to begin talks with Saud on the touchy Middle East situation.

They were silent also about a comment by Joseph T. Sharkey, leader of the Democratic majority in the New York City Council. He said he backed Wagner "1,000 per cent." and added:

"When we entertain half of these monkeys who come over here, it's on orders of the state department."

Later Sharkey said he had not meant to use the word "monkeys."

It was disclosed that the state department some time ago approached Richard C. Patterson, the city's official greeter, and asked him to arrange the full New York VIP treatment for Saud. Patterson was said to have reported the request to the mayor, who turned thumbs down.

PLAIN TALK

"Here's a fellow who says slavery is legal," Wagner said. "In the air force, you cannot have any Jewish boys and Catholic priests can not say masses."

Wagner explained that Saud has barred inclusion of any Jews among U.S. Air Force members stationed in Saudi Arabia. His remark about priests applied, he said, to both civilians and servicemen stationed in Saudi Arabia.

Traders Still Hopeful

BRUSSELS (AP)—Diplomats of six West European nations failed Monday to complete plans for a common market and an atomic pool. They declared optimistically however, that they hope to get the job done in the next few weeks.

Paul - Henri Spaak of Belgium, conference chairman, said after the weekend meeting that the six foreign ministers will get together again here Feb. 4. He said French Premier Guy Mollet has invited the prime ministers of all proposed members to confer with him in Paris Feb. 12.

Delegates from France, West Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg hope to set up new plans by that date.

All Thoughts 'Controlled'

Chinese Reds Make Fetish of Hygiene

(This is the sixth and last of a series of articles on Communist China written by a veteran Greek correspondent.)

By GEORGE DROSSOS

The Chinese may have many minor forms of freedom. They can, for instance, dress as they please, eat what their pocket allows. They can or cannot play basketball, a current fad.

They can choose their newspapers, change their jobs.

They have "freedoms" but they do not possess freedom. I cannot say whether the majority of the Chinese ever knew absolute democratic freedom, and, also, the meaning of freedom differs geographically throughout the world.

What the Chinese lack is the ability to direct their thoughts and opinions as they might wish. All Chinese undergo mental and psychological "cultivation." Thus, slowly and gradually, thoughts are streamlined and spirits levelled. Life becomes more tranquil, if very much less interesting. Utility becomes the new diety to which everything must bow in obeisance.

This was emphasized when, to leave Mao's China, I proceeded from Manchuria to Tien Tsin and on to Canton and to the outer world via Hong Kong.

Travelling by train in China wants some description. The train is the principal means of transportation. Air transport is almost completely confined to civil servants, officers, foreign delegations and diplomats. Shanghai, with a population of some 6,000,000, has but one plane a day to Canton, with an estimated population of 2,000,000.

No Idea of Time

The demand for seats is always far greater than the accommodations available. The stations are full of a teeming mass of humanity. But there is no pushing: The Chinese do not seem to have a notion of time; the crowds seem to live in eternity.

The sounds and ceremonies of departure have hardly died down when life on the train starts. There is a loudspeaker in each compartment which operates from about 7.30 in the morning till about 9.30 p.m. with only two hours break. It is under the control of a Chinese woman.

As soon as the train has pulled out of the station, two men appear to clean the compartment. It does not require cleaning, but they are paid to clean it and clean it they will.

As a result of persistent propaganda, cleanliness has become a mania that has seized the contemporary Chinese. He washes himself at frequent intervals, he does not throw anything into the streets, and only spits into cuspidors, which one finds wherever the eye may rove.

After the cleaners have finished with the compartment, another man appears whose sole occupation is attending to the cuspidors.

There is also another official of the cleanliness squad who arrives about the same time. His sole occupation is chasing flies. He wears white clothes and gloves and a gauze mouthpiece. He holds a squirt-gun with which he sprays all insects. If the flies survive this ordeal, he deals with them with the swatter that he also holds.

If some impertinent fly or other insect later turns up in your compartment you have but to ring the bell and call the fly-killer. He will kill the fly with consummate skill, and then taking it in his glove-covered hand, deposit it in the cuspidor.

About this time a girl or man will pass with a kettle of boiling water. She wears a gauze mask and sells little envelopes of tea.

There are also food and fruit vendors who offer their wares from glass cases, and who also wear gauze mouthpieces. In addition, there will be a visit from a member of the security police but normally he does not interfere.

But the main feature of travel in Red China is the loudspeaker. The woman-broadcaster on the

Delay Killed It

B.C. Had Chance Of Giant A-Plant

VANCOUVER (CP)—Harry V. Warren, professor of geology at the University of British Columbia, said Monday B.C. has lost out on a "fantastic new industry"—the manufacture of U-235, a uranium by-product.

He told the Vancouver Board of Trade's ad and sales bureau the province missed out on attracting European governments to build an atomic plant here because of delay in deciding whether a huge new Fraser River hydro dam at Moran, 110 miles north of here, should be built.

PROF. HARRY WARREN

The proposal by six European nations to build an atomic plant "would have been perfect for B.C.," he said.

Prof. Warren said the European group of countries and the NATO council were both interested in the suggested $500,000,000 dam, centre of a controversy between fish and power interests in this province.

"They would have bought more than 2,000,000 horsepower a year for 15 years until the plant was able to produce its own energy," said Prof. Warren.

"After that time they would turn the energy back to the province, just at the time when industry could use it most."

MP Charges

Politics Tinge Taxation

OTTAWA (BUP) — A charge of political favoritism in assessing heavy income tax payers was levelled against the government in the Commons yesterday by J. C. Van Horne, free-swinging New Brunswick Conservative.

It was immediately denied by chief government whip W. G. Weir, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Van Horne said he had evidence that "political influence plays a very great part in setting assessments."

Van Horne told the story of "one investigator" for the income tax branch who came to Ottawa to tell Van Horne that he was leaving the government service.

No sooner would he prepare a big assessment levy, and gather the evidence necessary to go to court, the investigator said, than he would be ordered "to forget the whole thing" by the national revenue department.

To a government demand that he name the individual involved in his case, Van Horne shouted above the din, "You wouldn't thank me for giving the name when you heard it!"

Chemainus Theft

$2,000, Cheques And Safe Stolen

CHEMAINUS — RCMP last night were exploring every possible lead to track down a safe stolen Sunday from the Horseshoe Bay Inn with more than $3,200 in cash and cheques in it.

Yesterday and Sunday RCMP scoured all side roads in the Chemainus district searching for the safe. Fingerprint and investigation branch experts from RCMP headquarters at Victoria have been brought into the case.

Police said the money was taken from a safe, which was carried from the inn. About $2,000 of the loss was in cash.

It is understood the safe and contents were insured for $2,500.

Gerry Smith, proprietor of the Horseshoe Bay Inn at Chemainus, said a guest saw the safe in the hotel office at 3.30 a.m. Sunday morning.

"When I went to the office at 8 a.m. it was gone," he said. There were 14 guests in the hotel, but not one heard any unusual noise.

Cold Breaking

Winter Fun Nearly Done

The knell has sounded for skating, sledding, snowmen and snowball fights—the weatherman says Victoria's cold snap is near its end.

It's bad news for the children, but good news for adults with blue noses and fingers, cars, spiffies, holes in their shoes or shrinking fuel supplies.

Following 8½ hours of sunshine yesterday, the city parks board banned further skating on Goodacre Lake.

The temperature—a high of 40 degrees—was the highest since Jan. 11. The low yesterday was 27.

Cold northerly winds of the past week have stopped.

Yesterday's bright sun warmed the cold blanket of air and is expected to warm it still further today.

Saanich police said last night they were not stopping outdoor skating, but they would see what the ice was like today.

Esquimalt police also said they were not halting skating last night.

Outdoor ice was very popular Sunday with about 400 skaters on Elk Lake, 150 on Langford Lake, some 300 on Swan Lake, and about 200 on Goodacre Lake.

The warm sun not only melted ice, it also melted snow and slush along roads. Cool temperatures froze the water into a slick film which kept driving conditions hazardous.

Despite slippery conditions, Greater Victoria police reported late last night there had been no road accidents of any kind.

Farther out, a woman was injured in an accident at the intersection of Patricia Bay Highway and Keating Crossroad at about 11 p.m. when the car in which she was riding skidded, sideswiped a parked car and plunged over a 12-foot bank.

The warmer weather cheered about 300 workmen on southern Vancouver Island who have been laid off because of the severe cold conditions.

Freezing temperatures left Sooke areas without water over the weekend.

Sooke Harbor was temporarily "dry" Friday night until a crew from Greater Victoria Water District cleared the intake and thawed the main leading to the village.

At Saseenos, water was off from Friday until Sunday morning.

Moslems At Bay

ALGIERS (Reuters)—Algiers became a city under siege Monday as Moslems began an eight-day strike in support of independence.

French armored cars were stationed at crossroads, tanks blocked highways and 15,000 soldiers patrolled the city.

Talk with a Saucer Pilot

'Then I Felt Head Pressure'

Pointing to a chart listing information about flying saucers is Marc Norman, who leads some 20 Victorians in a study of "unidentified flying objects." Mr. Norman says he received two "telethought" messages from the captain of a flying saucer.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Most of Victoria, like the rest of the world, is "bound by the ether," according to "Antrim," a flying saucer pilot who spoke to Marc Norman, 1928 Oak Bay Avenue, on Nov. 9 last year.

"Antrim" used the phrase to describe people who didn't believe in flying saucers.

Account of the message was released yesterday by Mr. Norman, who conducts a flying saucer group of 20 persons in Victoria two nights a week.

Mr. Norman casually uses such phrases as "radionic fields," "thermo-active fireball ray" and "telethought messages."

Telethought messages came from Antrim, the captain of a saucer which was identified as "Flight 15, of Planet 99 of the constellation Canis Major," Mr. Norman said.

First message came while he was in Vancouver with friends. The talk touched casually on flying saucers when a tapping noise was heard.

"Then I felt a pressure on my head," Mr. Norman said. "This voice came into my head. It had a sort of metallic sound, very clear and [illegible] soft and well-modulated."

It was "Antrim," he said, and he introduced the other three members of the crew as "Kilmar," "Pontor" and "Gato." They explained the saucer was an inter-planetary control ship checking on atomic explosions.

Mr. Norman said "Antrim" explained that atomic explosions caused "radionic pockets" which drifted through space until anchored by the earth's magnetic field. Then they caused aircraft accidents by cutting off the "electronic currents" controlling the engines.

"Inter-planetary control ships sought out the danger spots and destroyed them with "thermo-active fireball rays."

The message ended with the promise that believers in the existence of flying saucers would be given the "New Age Philosophy" and the farewell term, "Selas."

Second message, received Nov. 9 referred to an incident when a saucer pilot was supposed to speak to the world through a radio station.

Antrim explained that the "Interplanetary Space Council" had vetoed the arrangements, made without permission.

However, it was decided that as thousands of earth people were expecting some sign on Nov. 7, a ship would be sent. It did not come low enough to be seen by the naked eye as there were earthly intercepter planes in the air.

However, Mr. Norman said an "object" was picked up on radar screens.

Mr. Norman, who describes himself as a minister-at-large of the Church of the Christian Brotherhood, conducts two classes—one for beginners Saturday nights and another for advanced students Wednesday nights.

Members plan to hold all-night watches in shifts this summer to sight saucers. Mr. Norman says they can easily be seen on dark nights.

Royal Tradition Broken

Prince Charles Off to School

PRINCE CHARLES

LONDON (UP) — An eight-year-old boy named Charles went to school yesterday and wiped out 1,000 years of Britain's royal tradition.

For the youngster in red cap and blazer was Prince Charles, heir to the British throne. Never before had a royal heir been sent away from the royal tutors to a normal grade school classroom.

Little Charles was up at 8 a.m. and by 9.30 had ridden to a famous boys' preparatory school five minutes away from Buckingham Palace. With 120 other lads between five and 10 he started out with gymnastics, reading, writing, arithmetic—and 10 other subjects.

SECRET KEPT

He was well into his first day's work before Buckingham Palace disclosed the break with royal tradition. No one noticed his quiet ride from the palace to the school in the plush diplomatic neighborhood of Belgravia.

British newspapermen agreed with the palace's request to keep the name of the school and its headmaster secret so that the prince will be spared from public clamor in his daily trip back and forth.

Queen Elizabeth picked a six-year-old private school which prohibits spanking or other corporal punishment. Its headmaster, 48, is a famous athlete who helped organize the 1948 Olympic Games here.

"There is absolutely no discrimination," said the headmaster last night.

The heir to the throne is simply "Charles." He will take part in games and classes like any other youngster.

Thor Missile Attempt Fails

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force attempt to launch a test version of its Thor ballistic missile was reported Saturday to have ended in failure, with the multi-ton rocket in wreckage. The incident occurred at Patrick Air Force Base, Fla., the missile test centre used by all the armed forces.

The usual tight secrecy concerning all missile tests was thrown around the Thor launching attempt.

'Men Died at Dieppe To Suit a Paper Plan'

LONDON (CP) — What went wrong at Dieppe?

For more than 14 years military strategists have pondered this question as they reviewed the events of the Aug. 19, 1942, raid on the French port in which more than half the 4,963 Canadians taking part were either killed or taken prisoner.

One of the most forthright attempts to assess blame is contained in an official Royal Navy account published Monday — "The War at Sea, Volume II," by Capt. S. W. Roskill.

Roskill's account puts the main blame on over-rigid and wrong planning. He discreetly names no name on whom the main responsibility must fall, but Canadian army historian Col. C. P. Stacey in The Official History of the Canadian Army has written:

"So far as any one individual had general authority over the operation, it was the chief of combined operations, Lord Louis Mountbatten."

Mountbatten now is a first sea lord.

Criticizing the rigidity of the Dieppe plan, Roskill says:

"The time laid down in the orders for withdrawal was 11 a.m.; but when the force commanders wished to advance it by half an hour, it was pointed out that this would upset the RAF's timetable for laying the protective smoke-screen."

The result: waiting men died needlessly on the beaches to suit a paper-plan.

Roskill says even the German army's report expressed astonishment later at the finicky exactitude of the operation orders.

RCAF Posts City Youth

Leaving Victoria Friday for the RCAF Station at St. John's, Que., is John C. Taylor, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold E. Taylor, 2705 Tudor Road.

A student of Oak Bay High School, he joined 2455 Aircraft Control and Warning (auxiliary) Squadron here in the spring of 1956 under the provisions of the reserve tradesmen's training plan.

Sow Primroses During June

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

In growing polyanthus primroses from seed, the book says to sow the seed in an outdoor shady bed in late spring or early summer—around the middle of June is favored by many growers. This is to provide plants for flowering the following spring.

This works out fairly well when we get a cool and damp summer, but polyanthus growth slows up or stops entirely during hot, dry spells, and if we should get one of those summers when no rain falls and the forests are closed because of low humidity, these plants just don't make enough growth.

Polyanthus plants are set out in the display beds in the fall, and they need to be big, strong plants if the spring display is to be worthwhile.

For this reason, I think it pays to make a much earlier sowing—not only to give the plants more time to put on growth, but to allow for the erratic germination of the seed, which seems to be a common characteristic of the primrose family.

If you have a greenhouse or a coldframe with an electric soil-heating cable, early February is a good time to put in the seeds. If you must depend on a sunny kitchen windowsill for starting your seeds, late February or early March is time enough, so the plants won't become drawn and leggy through being indoors too long.

In making these sowings, it is essential that almost surgical cleanliness be used, as the polyanthus and other primroses are very subject to "damping-off" and other fungus infections while in the seedling stage. Pots should be scrubbed thoroughly with a few drops of household disinfectant added.

If only a few plants are being raised, I think it pays to buy one of those plastic bags of prepared potting soil. It doesn't cost very much, and it has been pasteurized to exactly the right degree to kill off parasitic organisms without harming the soil itself.

Failing this, use a mixture of two parts woodsy topsoil, one part peat moss and one part coarse sand or vermiculite, and when the pots are filled, water with boiling water, right out of the kettle, until water is coming out the hole in the bottom of the pot, then set aside to cool before sowing the seed. This isn't necessary, of course, when the prepared, sterilized potting soil is used.

Primula seed is very fine and it is difficult to scatter it on the surface of the soil thinly enough. One system I have used to good advantage is to mix it with some finely-ground cereal such as Cream of Wheat or corn meal, then scatter the mixture until just the barest trace of it can be seen on the soil. The seeds need no covering at all.

With the seeds sown, cover the top of the flower pot with a sheet of plastic film—those polythene bags from the supermarkets are fine for this purpose. Stretch the film over the top of the pot and hold it in place with an elastic band, and with this in place, no further watering will be necessary until after the seedlings come through and the film taken off.

Teach 'Frills' in Home Advice to PTA Panel

Some subjects taught in British Columbia schools should be taught by parents in the home, John R. Meredith of the department of education curriculum department said during a panel discussion last night at a PTA meeting at Oak Bay Junior High School.

In discussing the question "Are there frills in education," Mr. Meredith said the school curriculum does contain subject matter that could be considered frills — "subject matter that should be taught in the homes."

Burden of school costs should be taken off the property owners and made a national cost, ex-alderman Robert Macmillan said.

"Our children grow up to be Canadians and not just municipal residents and Canada should bear the costs," he said.

Dr. Stoddard said the city council suggestion that the school board collect their own taxes was a way to get it across to the board that the public cannot afford higher costs.

"But, you have to remember that many homes are not interested or equipped to teach some of these things," Mr. Meredith said to some 100 parents present at the PTA meeting at Oak Bay Junior High School.

costs were taken from the municipalities, interest and control in education at the local level would be lost, Mr. Meredith said.

Dr. David Stoddard, representing business, said the high school term should be cut by one year to a three-year period in B.C. as it was before 1930.

"Our students aren't learning any more in four years than they were in the three years I had at high school," he said.

"Look at all the extra classrooms we would have," he said to panel member W. H. Golby, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board.

"If we said we wouldn't build and got the mill rate down, we could never make up the loss in youth training," Mr. Golby said.

National Health Plan 'Probable' This Year

Health Minister Eric Martin said yesterday there "appears to be a very good chance" of the introduction of a national health program in Canada this year.

Introduction of such a scheme hinges upon the acceptance of six provinces which contain a majority of Canada's population. First to signify its willingness to enter the program was B.C. followed by Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Legislation to permit Ontario's joining a national program is now before the Ontario provincial legislature and Nova Scotia has stated it will enter the scheme when it becomes available.

Under the plan put forward by the federal government priority would be given to the development of a system to cover diagnostic care such as laboratory and radiological services and hospital care.

The federal government would pay 45 per cent of "shareable" costs of such a program.

These "shareable" costs would be determined on the basis of normal operating costs maintenance costs insofar as these relate to standard ward care but would not include capital costs such as depreciation interest and amortization of debentures.

View of Dulles:

'Dedicated Ass'

LONDON (UP)—Newspapers on both sides of the political fence bitterly attacked U.S. State Secretary John Foster Dulles yesterday for his observation that he would not want to be an American going into Egypt beside British and French soldiers.

Cassandra, columnist of the La-borite Daily Mirror, called Dulles' explanation that he meant no slurs "yet another demonstration of how the foreign policy of the most powerful nation on earth can be largely in the hands of a dedicated ass."

Drank 70 Beers Accused Claims

Magistrate Henry Hall yesterday reserved judgment until Monday as to whether a young man who claimed to have drunk more than 70 glasses of beer was guilty of deliberately setting a fire in his home.

Donald Quaite, 491 Constance, also will be tried in Esquimalt court then on charges of wilful damage and assaulting a police officer.

He is accused of arriving home about 5 a.m., Jan. 11, smashing furniture and breaking windows, striking and swearing at police officers and knocking over a burning oil stove to burn the house down.

Quaite said he had begun drinking with a friend, Victoria College student Wesley Umphrey, 1119 Colville Road, who earlier had testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, after picking up an unemployment insurance cheque about 1 p.m., and continued in various places until Umphrey left about 10 p.m. He remembered another person drinking with him then until the beer parlor they were in closed. Earlier evidence was that he had gone to a private home after that with a case of beer.

He estimated he drank "about 70 glasses" and "two or three cocktails." He said he didn't remember smashing the house up but "came to" at one point to see an oil stove in the small living room overturned and oil flowing out and he tried to throw it through the already smashed front door window.

Mrs. Quaite said he came home about 5 a.m. and began smashing up the furniture. She called her mother, Mrs. R. H. Sears, 531 Joffre, who called police.

Corp. James Owens and Const. Peter Dougherty both testified they came once and found the accused throwing things around. He swore at them and threw a chair at Corp. Owens, they said. They were called later by Mrs. Sears, who had taken her daughter and the two small children back with her. She said that from her kitchen window she had seen a "low flickering flame" on the floor of the Quaite house, which she owns.

The officers came the second time, put out a fire on the floor and took Quaite away.

Preliminary hearing of a manslaughter charge against Belton Frank Turner, 5021 Santa Clara, will be held Feb. 7.

Magistrate Hall set the date in city police court yesterday.

Charge arose out of the death Jan. 5 of well-known sportsman John William Youson, 76, 740 Esquimalt, who became Greater Victoria's second traffic fatality of the year after being struck by a car driven by Turner.

A charge of criminally negligent driving against Victor Yablonski, 1222 Yates, was dismissed. He had been involved in a two-car collision on Bay Street 75 feet east of Chambers early Jan. 17.

William E. Elshaw, 841A Pandora, was fined $25 for driving against restrictions on his licence. James Peter Connor, 1407 Fort, was fined $15 for permitting a minor to drive a motorcycle. Thomas Hammond, 2651 Cedar Hill, was fined $25 for driving without a licence. Gordon H. Smith, 1359 Carnsew, was fined $10 for failing to heed a police siren. Victor Peter Merriman was fined $25 and $2.50 costs for failing to file a 1956 income tax return. James Reynolds, HMCS Naden, was fined $25 for driving without a licence.

Melvin F. Newton, 695 Baxter, was found guilty in Esquimalt court of the theft of 1,200 pounds of metal Jan. 5.

Magistrate Hall, who "did not accept" Newton's story that the metal was just lying loose and a man said he could have it, remanded him to Feb. 4 for sentence pending receipt of a probation report.

The metal, used car parts, was taken from the yard of 878 Viewfield, a car transport and storage concern owned by William John Temple, 2871 Dysart, and sold for $15.06 to Industrial Iron and Metal Trading Co. Ltd.

The more serious charge of theft over $50 was laid because some of the car parts were operable and were worth more than scrap metal. Temple said they were worth "about $90."

Albert C. Bystedt, no fixed address, was given a 30-day sentence, concurrent with one he received earlier in city court, for passing a worthless cheque in Esquimalt.

Robert B. Low, 2000 Chambers, was found guilty of careless driving Jan. 19 in a two-car accident that caused $800 damage.

Federal Appropriations

IT appears probable that many talked-of improvements may die on the order paper of the House of Commons, Ottawa, this session. Mentioned federal public works allocations for the coming year are mostly in bits and pieces. There has been no word yet as to what the government will do in this area respecting the badly-stalled Rocky Point naval magazine. Without proper dock facilities it is crippled, although $5,000,000 has been spent at the site to reach this point. Sidney, for long urging the construction of a breakwater to make its harbor more usable for ferry and other traffic, presumably still must wait. The proposed federal allocations have been more lively in the Greater Vancouver area, but Vancouver has cabinet representation in the government.

One of the less well known but highly important improvements that was asked for Vancouver Island was the proposed addition of a selenium-cell photometric telescope at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory. An allocation of $150,000 was announced at Ottawa last week under the federal department concerned. This sum, however, will not build the new telescope, and short of a complete allocation it is difficult to see how effective progress could be made on the plan. The need of the new telescope has been apparent for some time as Canada assumes its co-ordinated part in the work of the world Astronomical Union. Half a telescope would be meaningless.

These works are concerned with national purposes; the naval arsenal and the astrophysical centre directly, and other items hardly less so. An effective all-weather harbor at Sidney would be of immediate and major importance to Victoria. Half-allocations, and in some instances none, are not any answer to the requirements of Vancouver Island in general, nor to this area in particular. Not much can be done with half an appropriation; a little now, and the vague promise of more at some indefinite time in the future. The truth is that the federal administration is unwilling to commit itself in the time before an election.

The reaction locally may well be the human one—denied either a yes or no on their submissions, Vancouver Island organizations can do little other than press again, and more insistently, for the attention they are seeking from Ottawa. Few commitments of any nature are likely to be made after a general election, when the necessity of considering the electorate has lessened if not passed.

Power Wins Again

ANOTHER round in the battle of hydro-electric power versus scenery has been won by the B.C. Power Commission. The thundering cataract which made Elk Falls one of Vancouver Island's leading scenic attractions for residents and tourists alike is to be reduced to a mere trickle because the water is needed to turn the turbines of the Campbell River system. It will be two or three years at the very least—and probably many more—before enough water can be released to restore the falls. By then their fame will have departed.

So much, then for the assurances so confidently given that the John Hart dam would not interfere appreciably with the flow of water over Elk Falls. Tourist organizations and just plain people who hate to see beauty destroyed by the march of industrial progress were apprehensive about the future of Elk Falls when the Campbell River development was in the planning stage. It has taken a mere decade to prove that their fears were well grounded.

The arguments put forward to excuse the drying up of the waterfall are familiar and, one supposes, incontrovertible if industrial expansion is to continue. The falls were fed by the overflow from John Hart dam, but such is the demand for electric power that the engineers can permit an overflow only at the expense of horsepower. So, of course, power wins again. None of this, however, does much to mitigate the sorrow that is caused by the surrender of something as beautiful as Elk Falls. A man turns a valve, and that's the end of them.

Elk Falls Park will remain, but it will not be the same without the sight and sound of the waterfall. In the circumstances the tourist organizations owe it to prospective visitors to withdraw all the brochures and folders which depict Elk Falls, since no one would wish to use false pretences to attract visitors. For the same reason it might be better to change the name of the park, too. It could be embarrassing to have tourists inquire, "But where are the falls?"

The Sooner the Better

MAYOR SCURRAH has asked the city fire wardens to get busy on plans for a new central fire hall. This is as long-talked-about a project as was the Point Ellice Bridge before the mayor took the latter in hand on assuming office. Of the need for a new fire department headquarters there isn't a doubt; these are housed in a ramshackle building which if occupied by anyone else would be condemned instantly by the fire chief as a grave hazard. There could scarcely be a greater anomaly than that.

If a main fire hall is to be central, as it should be, it must be located downtown or close to that area, and there are few handy sites now available. This will add to the problems of the fire wardens. A corollary almost of the fire department is the adjacent police headquarters, also housed in quarters no longer suitable for efficient operation. The police building is fireproof enough but it has long been too small for its purpose. Previous talks on the subject had linked fire and police together, although the removal of the present fire hall would permit extension of the police building along more adequate lines. It is a pity the City ever lost possession of the northeastern part of the block in question, which would have provided space for expansion of joint police-fire facilities.

On the other hand sale of this property helped swell the fund which is underwriting the new Point Ellice Bridge. A factor in building a new fire hall will be the amount left in the fund after the bridge has been completed; as a starter at least. The longer the fire hall project is put off the more the handicaps will pile up, however. The mayor is right in saying that the sooner the job is tackled the better. Since as chairman of the city fire wardens Alderman Curtis is equally enthused with the idea perhaps some real progress will be made in the matter this year . All of the City's own housing is badly outmoded and it will not do to leave everything to some future uncertain date. One thing at a time, forcefully pursued, is good business, and a new fire hall seems to have priority if the money can be found for it.

Egypt Set on Withdrawal

By WILTON WYNN
Associated Press Correspondent

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt looked today to the Asian-African bloc in the United Nations to break the Middle East deadlock over Israel's refusal to withdraw unconditionally from Gaza and the Aqaba areas.

Seen from Cairo, there appears to be little chance that Egypt will compromise. The Egyptians have taken the line that any kind of concessions to Israel amounts to rewarding Israeli aggression. At the same time, the Egyptians seem to believe that the Asian-African group can work out some kind of formula to avert an explosion in the Middle East.

The most hopeful sign in Cairo was an editorial in the morning newspaper Al Akhbar which advocated "wide scale consultations" to avoid any "hasty or rash action."

Al Akhbar frequently reflects the thinking of President Nasser's government and often foreshadows new developments in government policy.

After several days of highly volatile editorials in the Cairo press, Al Akhbar sounded a reasonable note by saying: "We should not immediately resort to war. Such a weapon should be the very last resort, after exhausting all other peaceful means.

Al Akhbar urged consultations on the widest scale, not only with Arab states but also with the entire Asian-African bloc both inside and outside the United Nations. Red China, which counts itself as a member of the bloc, is not in the UN.

Whatever formula may be worked out, it appears definite that Egypt will not hear of any kind of agreement or compromise with Israel before the latter's troops are withdrawn unconditionally according to the UN resolutions. Talks of internationalization of Gaza or the Aqaba gulf at this time would fall on deaf ears here.

The Egyptians also oppose turning the UN Emergency Force into an occupation force, and probably will try to expel that body if an effort is made to change its terms of reference prior to a withdrawal.

The possible compromise—and the chances are slight—would be in the form of a "gentlemen's agreement" between Egypt and the United Nations that Egypt would be receptive to suggestions for easing Palestine tension after the Israeli withdrawal. This could not be put into a formal agreement now because it would mean Israel's withdrawal would have conditions attached.

"You aren't going to put it back just like that, are you?"

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

EVEN if when one looks at old photographs in the family album it is hard to accept the maxim that the camera doesn't lie, there isn't a doubt in the world that it shows up your weak spots.

Especially when allied to sound on TV.

A colleague was telling me he saw John Foster Dulles on TV recently and his impression of that noted gentleman wasn't too good. In fact my colleague was alarmed. He thought Dulles akin to an old fuddy-duddy.

The U.S. secretary rambled confusedly all through a TV press interview as though unclear of his subject and what he had to say about it.

The point about this of course is that a foreign secretary whose business is diplomacy should always have command of his mind and his tongue. At least outside the privacy of his home; inside it he presumably may be as inadequate as lesser men.

* * *

TV viewers then, I suppose, wouldn't be as surprised by his latest public gaffe as those who haven't seen Mr. Dulles on the small screen. For the others my colleague's assessment seems to be correct.

It is incomprehensible that the chief architect of U.S. foreign policy should make the remark he did about an American soldier in the Middle East being safer without the company of British and French soldiers. Even if he really thought so.

It wasn't a wise thing to say; indeed it was a pitiable example of infelicity in a man holding Mr. Dulles' position. His words were open to a construction he wouldn't intend either. You should have heard what a friend of mine said who served alongside American soldiers in New Guinea.

John Foster Dulles, unhappily, was merely living up to his name. You could search the record for a long time before finding trace of a foreign secretary, of any nation, who had acquired such a reputation for putting his foot in his mouth. His tenure of office has been studded with bloomers.

* * *

Knowing this one English paper excuses him by saying he was speaking "off the cuff," and that he is a man to whom the right words do not come readily. Another conceded his troubles but said a statesman should guard his tongue.

So he should, but that seems to be beyond Mr. Dulles, who perhaps never knows what his tongue is saying.

A prerequisite of a diplomat, if he is Mr. Dulles, would seem to be a course under his fellow-countryman, Mr. Dale Carnegie.

Actually it is quite amazing that a person obviously lost "among the prickly pears of the English language," as another English paper puts it, should hold a job whose chief stock-in-trade is words.

A U.S. state department official says Mr. Dulles meant no insult to British-French soldiers. Quite probably he didn't. That merely heightens the gaffe, however, and, a whole host of people will think, proves that he doesn't belong in his present post.

In these delicate times it is not comforting to think that the most powerful centre of western diplomacy is in charge of a flustered old fuddy-duddy, of a man who constantly irritates and confounds his allies.

Reports From Ottawa

ASSINIBOIA, which means "the land of the people who cook by roasting," is a federal electoral district in southern Saskatchewan where the two candidates in the next election are already busy roasting each other.

Hazen Argue, 36, the sitting CCF member, is opposed by Liberal MP Ross Thatcher, 40, who thinks his chances are better in Assiniboia than in his own riding of Moose Jaw-Lake Centre.

Argue established the tenor of the fight when he told the Commons the other day that Thatcher is a "misfit" among the Liberals who is cuddling up" to Social Credit just in case "he needs another escape route." Naturally this does not endear Argue to Thatcher, and when I last saw Ross he was busy figuring out what he could say against Argue within the limitations on subject matter in a pending debate on wheat.

Thatcher's political record is that he quit the CCF, became an Independent, and last year joined the Grits. As a result, Argue, CCF leader Coldwell and CCF Premier Tommy Douglas of Saskatchewan are out to nail Thatcher's hide to the barn door. But the Liberals have other ideas. Agriculture Minister Gardiner is devoting a lot of time to Thatcher's candidacy. Finance Minister Harris, Resources Minister Lesage and Fisheries Minister Sinclair have promised to campaign for Thatcher. Prime Minister St. Laurent and Trade Minister Howe also may speak in Assiniboia.

* * *

If it comes off, a challenge debate between Thatcher and Premier Douglas will be a highlight of the campaign. Douglas issued the challenge after Thatcher criticized Saskatchewan's program of socialized industry during a speech in the Commons last year. He also called Thatcher a turncoat, which Thatcher particularly resents, inasmuch as Douglas was once a Social Crediter.

Thatcher will accept the challenge if Douglas will agree to an impartial chairman, to holding the debate under Assiniboia Liberal Association auspices, and to limit it to the provincial industrial socialization program.

In defence of his decision to run in Assiniboia—his choice from among eight Saskatchewan seats he could have contested—Thatcher points out (a) a large part of Assiniboia was in his riding prior to 1953; (b) he lived in Assiniboia for several years and owns a ranch there; (c) he didn't seek the Liberal nomination, but was the unanimous choice of a Liberal convention, and (d) Argue "stole" half the riding anyway by shouldering former CCF MP Eric McKay out of the way to get the Assiniboia CCF nomination in 1953.

* * *

Argue, whom some think may become CCF leader after Coldwell, is a pie-in-sky socialist who wants parity prices, payment for farm stored grain, crop insurance, doubled PFRA payments, $65 old-age pensions, more than doubled family allowances, health insurance now, subsidized road building, more foreign aid and aid for municipalities.

Thatcher, who owns a thriving chain of hardware stores, is a private enterpriser who got in the wrong church when he joined the CCF years ago. As a CCFer he used to criticize the government for being extravagent. As a Liberal, he criticizes the CCF for advocating costly programs which in his opinion are far beyond what the economy can support.

There are those who contend the CCF is on the skids in Saskatchewan. If Thatcher takes Argue, there won't be much doubt about it.

The Packsack

of GREGORY CLARK

EVERY newspaperman treasures pet memories of his reporting days. Mine is of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, at his home in Hyde Park, New York, sitting in a big leather chair with his head having for its background the collected works of Rudyard Kipling.

I had been one of the lucky correspondents elected to sit with the president of the United States in his home during the reception of the election returns of his second campaign for the presidency. It was the typical election night scene in the home of any candidate, whether an alderman or a president: young ladies of the family and neighborhood wandered about with platters of sandwiches, or a pitcher of coffee; the elder statesmen of journalism clustered around the great man, barring the approach of us small fry; Mrs. Roosevelt bustling about seeing everybody was happy: and Mrs. Sarah Delano, the president's grandma, looking us all over with astonishment.

It was Mrs. Delano I got my eye on. She may have been the grandma of a president, of a famous man: but she was a very human old lady. Nobody was paying her court.

I paid her court.

And in a little while she took my hand and went up to Franklin, her boy, and burst through the serried ranks of the elder statesmen of journalism, and scattered them in all directions.

"Franklin," said Grandma, imperiously, "here is a friend of mine who wants to know what you think of Spain. Are you on the side of the rebels or the Fascists?"

The president looked at me with radiant understanding. I had been courting his Grandma. He motioned me to sit down with him, waving all the elder statesmen of the press away.

Grandma sat down on the edge of my chair.

All I wanted, all I prayed for, was a photographer, to get the picture of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, his head thrown back, his eyes full of mischief and understanding, and the collected works of Rudyard Kipling behind his head, there in the library of his home.

But what I got was something better.

"Madam, Mr. Clark," said the president of the United States, "I regret that I do not have sufficient information on which to base an opinion."

"Good boy," said Grandma.

And she took my hand and lead me back to the melee.

U.S. Building An Empire?

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

NEW DELHI — The outstanding historical event of the 20th century is the progressive demise of all the Western empires.

These empires, for better or worse, exercised authority and maintained a degree, at least, of order over large regions of the globe. Directly or indirectly, partly by interest and persuasion but ultimately by force, they ruled. With or without the existence of native governments and parliaments, there was no question where the seats of power lay. The congeries of nations of Eastern Europe from the Elbe to the Adriatic and down into Northern Italy were ruled from Vienna; the whole Middle East from Istanbul; North Africa, Indo-China, and many South Sea islands from Paris; Central Asia and the peripheral Baltic peoples right to the borders of Sweden from Moscow or Leningrad; Korea and many East Asian outposts from Japan; and almost all of Africa, and all the subpeninsulas of Asia, including the vast one from which I write, from London.

* * *

These empires were the great powers, and both world wars grew out of challenges to or between them. In each war these great powers allied themselves with and against each other, and after each the victors expanded their rule, directly or indirectly, at the cost of the conquered, either by setting up new "independent" states within their power orbit or by frankly dividing the spoils of the empires they had destroyed.

One can tick off these defunct empires one by one: Austro-Hungary, the Ottoman Empire, the short-lived German and Italian, the Dutch, the Japanese. Only Russia, after a period of isolation, entirely recovered her old empire after the Second World War, and totally supplanted Western influences and alliances in Eastern Europe.

Now, by historic irony, the last of the two great Western empires, France and Great Britain, are going down as the result of the forces they initially mobilized against their imperial challengers, under such war aims as self-determination.

* * *

It is this collapse of Western imperial power—all within 43 years—that now shakes the United States, and led the president to speak of the vacuum in the Middle East. It is this which has created the idea that the United States must somehow or other "police" the world "for peace," and awakens the charge that America aspires to the role of the former Western empires.

But is must be obvious that this role is not something that can be passed from hand to hand. Even were there an American will to do so, the conditions for it have disappeared.

Imperial authority rests upon force—not force in reserve but on force in being, on the spot, and as the instruments of governments under direct imperial control. Because Russia was resolved to make or unmake the government of Hungary she could put down internal revolt either by the army of a submissive government or use her own army to re-install such a government.

That has been done by every empire in history. Were Egypt a colony of Britain in the sense that Hungary has been demonstrated to be a colony of Russia, Britain could have got rid of Mr. Nasser. She could not get rid of him by speeches in the House of Commons. Nor could she have imposed acceptance of a successor upon the other Arab states except by controlling their governments and armies also.

* * *

There is no vacuum of armed force anywhere. On the contrary, never in human history have there been so many soldiers or weapons everywhere. But they are distributed, turned against many fronts, instruments of hostile and competing nationalisms between which there is no honest broker.

Yet the role of honest broker is one that America must try to play. It is the only one she can play.

But it cannot be exercised under the guise of "suppressing international communism," for that, in the Middle East, is neither the issue nor the cause of disturbances.

The role must be to temper national ambitions, create incentives for co-operation, and work steadfastly to alleviate rather than inflame animosities and fears.

With the Classics

There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,
There is society where none intrudes
By the deep Sea, and music in its roar;
I love not Man the less, but Nature more,
For these our interviews, in which I steal
From all I may be, or have been before,
To mingle with the Universe and feel
What I can ne'er express, yet can not all conceal.

—LORD BYRON.

Letters to the Editor

Votes and Prices

I see in today's paper (Jan. 25) that Imperial Oil made profits of $69,000,000 in 1956, compared to $62,000,000 in 1955, and we were told two or three days ago that they were increasing the price of gasoline and fuel oil.

Ten years ago the price of fuel oil was 10 cents a gallon. It has increased nearly 100 per cent in 10 years, although we were told that the huge oil discoveries in Alberta would reduce the price.

Isn't it time that our government stepped in and stopped this racketeering ramp of prices? We need badly an organized consumers' league whose combined voters might have some effect on the government to offset the influence of the trade unions.

I agree heartily with the letters in your paper urging the abolition of strikes. But the government would lose votes if they did that, and we will get no action until a consumers' league can produce more votes than the trade unions.

Free but Not Cheap

In the matter of the defenceless Christian Hanna, who so urgently seeks asylum in Canada (and who can blame him?), yet why Canada? On a Norwegian freighter why not Norway? On a Dutch freighter why not Holland? Or Africa? Or U.S.A., etc.? Who and what are these young women who offer him marriage whereby to achieve his entry, and did he himself urgently designate Canada?

Invective has been levelled at our immigration department and the laws of Canada have been held up to derisive comment. Those who endorse such unfair and irresponsible procedures would apparently set a precedent in the case of the unfortunate Mr. Hanna, thus providing loose claims for whomsoever might wish to enter Canada to serve any questionable expediency in the future.

Mr. Hanna may eventually be allowed entry, but not —it is to be hoped—without iron-clad precaution against a too-open door. Canada's hospitality is free; it is not "cheap"!

'Ain't We Got Fun'

A news item in the Colonist Jan. 19 informs us that the Victoria Parent-Teacher Council is going to stage an extensive telephone campaign urging support of the Greater Victoria school board's $5,600,000 school building referendum late in February.

As a participant in this new-fangled "give-away" racket, being a taxpayer in School District 63, I should like to make a comment or two. The idea of trying to ram a spending project down the ratepayers' throats a short time after they have already voted it down smacks strongly of the propaganda methods of the Communist dictators and the progressive education doctrinaires.

The PTA is one of the handiest tools with which our educational racketeers are gypping the public. With our schools going on the rocks, financially and culturally, school taxes becoming unbearable and juvenile delinquency increasing, the PTA is flourishing. "Ain't we got fun." What a break for the thousands of housewives, released from the heavier duties of the home by modern gadgets, not required to have even a fourth grade education but running our school system. How long can this Utopia last?

One-Sided Case

The debate on "The People vs. CHEK-TV" which finds its outlet in the columns of this paper has become too one-sided. It's beginning to sound like the old attitude towards industrial development which held Victoria in check for so long, which I thought had been outnumbered, but I see it's still evident.

There are still people with the audacity to suggest closing down a local business enterprize which cost $100,000 to put on the air. Even a temporary shut-down, simultaneous with the expense of moving equipment to Salt Spring Island, is liable to cripple a young enterprise just getting on its feet. They already have enough problems, such as coping with CBC policy which dictates what they will and will not broadcast.

The facts already pointed out by Bruce Lowther and others, but which these people fail to see, are, first, their argument is not with CHEK-TV at all, but with the CBC who stole Channel 2 from Victoria and allotted us Channel 6; secondly, the time to have taken action was before CHEK-TV was built, when it was first made known that licence had been granted for Channel 6.

In many cases the people complaining about losing Channel 5 could get it back if they were willing to spend some money on more directive antennas and wave traps, instead of the low-priced all-channel arrangement they have been getting by with up to now.

As it is now, most people in Victoria can still receive the outlets of three other TV networks, and one independent; a variety of program obtainable in very few other Canadian cities.

Gaza Strip Dispute

Egypt Shakes Fist

CAIRO (UP)—Egypt will take steps to oust Israel from the Gaza strip even including outright war if the United Nations fails to do so, sources close to the government said yesterday.

Egypt attacked a report by UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold which failed to demand unconditional Israeli withdrawal from the Gaza strip and Gulf of Aqaba areas of the Sinai Desert which Israel has sworn to hold.

Sources said that unless the UN general assembly now debating the Middle East situation in New York manages to dislodge the Israelis, Egypt will take action ranging from closure of the Suez Canal at first to an ultimate military offensive.

These sources expressed Egypt's determination to restore full Egyptian sovereignty over the Gaza and Aqaba regions.

Israel claims the Aqaba area as a means of protecting its approaches to the southern Israeli port of Eilat.

Egypt, the sources said, cannot allow Israeli shipping in Egyptian waters since the two countries technically are in a

They described any UN move endorsing Israeli navigation in Egyptian waters as "continuation of aggression" against Egypt.

However, the sources emphasized that Egypt is prepared to go along with the United Nations

Mid-East Plan At Stake Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's Middle East resolution went to the floor of the House of Representatives Monday with a recommendation that it be accepted or rejected "as is."

The house rules committee voted in favor of considering the resolution under a "closed rule," which prohibits amendments and limits debate to one day.

Debate is scheduled to start today. The full house will decide whether to follow the recommendation of the rules committee and the foreign affairs committee, which contends the resolution is so technical and complicated that amendments might ruin its effectiveness.

In the simplest terms, the resolution would authorize the president to use American troops in the Middle East to counter any open Communist aggression.

Twin Sailing Projects

Teen-Agers Launched

Two projects are being launched here to provide a real interest for teen-agers with a yen for sailing.

Both are aimed at encouraging "good sailing and good seamanship." Both are intended to translate this into "good citizenship."

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club is sponsoring a "do it yourself" project among some 50 junior members, aged 14 to 21, to build Sabots—eight-foot one-man racing dingies.

And the Boy Scout group at Prospect Lake, with the Prospect Lake Community Club, is working on the same idea.

Vernon Dawson, advisor and supervisor to the junior membership of Royal Victoria Yacht Club, said yesterday that out of their own funds the juniors are going to build two or three Sabots.

"When they have shown they are really interested, there is money provided in the 1957 budget of the yacht club to build half a dozen more," he said. Project is to start almost immediately.

It is estimated the Sabots, including sails which will have to be purchased, will cost about $70 each.

"The yacht club is trying to encourage the youngster who really wants to sail, and the entrance fee is not prohibitive at all," Mr. Dawson said. "The club is trying to build up junior membership, and to encourage good sailing and good seamanship in these youngsters."

Some of the juniors have their own Sabots or Davidsons, the two most popular of the small racing sailing craft.

"With these additions, we hope to have enough available to give the youngsters who don't own boats some practice in sailing," Mr. Dawson said.

Lectures are being held now, twice a month on Friday evenings, on seamanship and navigation.

At Prospect Lake, the Boy Scout group started out with the idea of building two Sabots. The community club became interested and plans to make six more for its membership of boys and girls.

There will be a total of eight teams of youngsters 14 to 16 years of age, with two to a team. Although the Sabot is a one-man craft, it was believed that on the lake two per boat would be "more interesting," said Andrew McGregor, Assistant Scoutmaster.

Competitions between the two groups may be held.

Junior members of the yacht club already compete with their counterparts in Vancouver and Seattle. They have gone to the two centres already this season, and will host the third of the three regattas here sometime in March.

Claim Rejected By Cabinet

Provincial cabinet yesterday rejected an application from a Burnaby couple for damages as a result of a car accident near Hope last July.

Gerald R. Smith and his wife Lilian claimed $2,265 special damages for alleged negligence on the part of the highways department.

They said the road was left in a dangerous condition without signs or a guard rail and that their car went off the highway resulting in serious personal injuries.

Pace Slows As Prices Move Back

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market suffered its fourth straight loss Monday and second worst of the week as trading slowed to the lowest trading in more than three weeks.

Observers said the market is presently testing its November lows in an effort to set a definite pattern. For the last few sessions, prices have wandered aimlessly with concentrated interest only in the speculative mining and western oil stocks.

Imperial Oil led industrial index losers. It lost $1.50 at $53. There were a few point declines among other industrials, but the general losses were fractional.

Senior base metals lost ground despite a $1.50-gain by Hudson Bay to $82. Coppers, uraniums and junior base metals had a wide majority of losses, which moved within a 65-cent range.

Hudson Bay Strong

MONTREAL (CP) — Most industrial sections were hit by losses that ranged to a point in moderate trading Monday on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges.

Hudson Bay bucked the general trend with a two - point gain in base metals. International Nickel and Noranda dropped one in the group. Steels showed Algoma, Atlas and Stelco off major fractions. Imperial lost 1½ as other refining oils eased minor fractions. Pipe lines were steady.

Papers gave ground. Nova Scotia jumped a point while other banks slipped in a ¼-point range. Shawinigan and B.C. Power moved off major fractions in utilities.

Utilities Do Best

NEW YORK (AP) — An uncertain stock market declined slowly Monday in the lightest turnover since Nov. 12.

Losses among pivotal issues ran to two or three points in a gradual melting of values.

The market was mixed from the start but a lower tendency developed and minus signs soon predominated. The rest of the session was a slow chiseling of prices which were at about their worst at the close.

Wall Street analysts said doubt and hesitation prevailed generally because of the cloudy nature of events at home and abroad.

Utilities continued their bullish trend in a modest way.

Nickel Stock Active

VANCOUVER — Prices eased generally, with oils and coppers showing weak spots.

Bethlehem Copper was off 25 cents at 2.15, while Trojan dropped 5 cents at 32 cents. Cowichan was 1.53 after 1.68 earlier.

Busiest stock was Pacific Nickel which closed 5 cents higher at 68 cents.

Among oil Pacific Pete, Canadian Atlantic, and Del Rio weakened but Fort St. John closed firm at $5.

B.C. Power was off 50 cents at $44½, while Inland Gas traded heavily to drop a similar amount at $18½.

MacMillan B was strong at $33¾.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices showed hesitation in a dull session which was affected by a decline in Unitde States grain markets.

Oats and barley trade was of a domestic nature with shipping orders for feed creating the best commercial demand. Prices were easier. United States selling in oats was noted.

CHICAGO (AP)—Grains retreated for wide losses on the board of trade under a steady barrage of selling.

Moisture in parts of the winter wheat area, heavy arrivals of cash corn, lack of export business and disclosure of large soybeans stocks at interior mills prompted the liquidation.

Ice Blamed

James Braley, 3141 Aldrich, taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital by Saanich police, was one of many persons—including children and adults—hurt in driving, skating and pedestrian mishaps, most of them attributed to ice, over the week-end.

GOOD CONDITION

Another elderly man, George English, 80, 435 Vancouver, was in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday after undergoing treatment for shock and leg injuries. He was crossing Cook at Rockland at 7 p.m. Sunday when a car driven by Robert Bertrand Anderson, 3226 Doncaster, was in collision with him.

Two children, John Howard, 7, and Patricia Howard, 10, suffered mouth and head cuts but were not admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital after a car driven by their father, Sean F. Howard, 316 Uganda, was in a two-car collision at Vancouver and Johnson. Driver of the other car was Edward Pearce Shaw, 210 Denison.

Royal Jubilee Hospital officials said they had "too many cases to count" of persons breaking bones in falls on ice. Eight were received in a 12-hour period yesterday. St. Joseph's Hospital reported the same condition.

Many of the cases, both hospitals reported, resulted from skating accidents.

Overstall Funeral Tomorrow

Funeral services will be held Wednesday for William Thomas Overstall, 87, veteran city optometrist who died Sunday in hospital.

One of the four top students to pass the first optometrical examinations in London in 1898, he was made a freeman of the city along with the other three.

Born in London, he came to Victoria in 1923 and practised optometry until his retirement seven years ago.

Survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Nora Hamilton, at the family residence, 2650 Beach Drive; three grandchildren, one nephew and nieces. Mrs. Overstall died in 1938.

Funeral will be held at McCall's Funeral Home at 3 p.m. Interment will be in the family burial plot, Ross Bay Cemetery.

Yemen Aids Rebels

ADEN (Reuters) — British and Yemeni officials exchanged heated words Monday on repeated clashes along the ill-defined borders of Yemen and Aden.

In Aden, British officials accused Yemeni troops and artillery of backing an attack by rebel [illegible] airfield in Aden, a British-protected collection of sultinates and sheikdoms at the tip of the Arabian Peninsula.

But the Yemeni legation in London said British forces started the battle Friday in a raid on the town of Qataba.

"As a result of this violent aggression," the legation said, "a number of people were killed and [illegible]."

Abou Taleb, Yemeni minister in Cairo, said Britain laid mines along Yemen's coast.

"This is a threat to the navigation and lives of non-Yemenis," he protested. "The Yemeni government will take all defensive and legal measures, whether before the International Court of Justice, the UN Security Council or the General Assembly."

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

Every job has its compensations and drawbacks, and this [illegible] forget are caused by those Memorial Arena fans who rudely shout "Hey, Tang, what are you going to do about those blankety-blank referees?" or something similar as soon as I get within earshot. Or even sooner.

Those are the times when my recurring resolve not to say a thing about game officials is strengthened. But there are other times, and Friday night was one, when one wonders if he should keep his opinion about the officiating out of print.

It's a difficult thing to decide. Admittedly, referees have a tough and thankless job and their mistakes are remembered longer than those made by the players. Criticizing a game official is one of the easiest things there is to do.

On the other hand, it is every bit as easy to take the attitude affected by some—that nothing detrimental should ever be said about officiating, that the officials are doing their best and, after all, are in a better position to see and more competent to judge than anyone else.

This attitude is just as hard to stomach on occasion as that of the fan who just has a prejudice against any form of authority but dares only to express it, as an anonymous voice, against those in charge of games.

First of all, doing one's best is commendable but, unfortunately, in other fields of endeavor it isn't necessarily enough. The Cougars, for instance, have sent three or four players to other clubs this season for the simple reason it was judged they weren't good enough. Is there any reason why nothing should be said or done about a referee who obviously isn't cutting the mustard? He is an integral part of the game, paid to do a job, and can alter its course as much as the presence of a Gordie Howe. He should be treated in the same manner as player, coach, or manager. If it's thought they're not doing the job they're supposed to do, someone else is given a chance to do it.

That, of course, again brings up the question about who is qualified to say whether or not a referee did a good job, and who should say it.

Perhaps it is presumptious for the paid observers in the press box to pass judgement but they are there to report what happened, almost all have learned over the years to watch a game more dispassionately than the average fan, and they have the advantage of the best viewing point in the building.

All of them would prefer not to have to mention the officiating but if it is honestly felt that it was detrimental to the entertainment paid for by the fans, it should be reported in the same manner as anything else which featured the game. One of the reasons there is bad officiating is the reluctance to say so.

It is not necessarily bad officiating when mistakes are made. The referee never lived who won't make at least one in every game. But it is bad officiating when there is glaring and continued inconsistency, or when an official is obviously unable to win the respect of the players. That's when it becomes difficult not to be critical. In fact, it can be argued that it is practically a duty to criticize.

League officials, understandably and necessarily, defend their game officials but, too often, they succeed in convincing only themselves. Poor officiating is a big reason for poor attendance and one of the biggest jobs for any league head is to find the kind of men who can command respect and control a game. It's a problem but it will never be solved by the attitude they have to get along with what they have and that nothing should be said about it.

At least one of four English League second division teams will advance to the quarter-finals of the Football Association Cup competition, according to the fifth-round draw made yesterday.

Barnsley and Nottingham Forest, both second division clubs, will meet in both of eight matches scheduled Feb. 16. Bristol City of the second division will meet division one Aston Villa, and Huddersfield Town, second division, meets Burnley of the first division.

Third division Bournemouth, which upset mighty Wolverhampton Saturday, plays highly-rated Tottenham; favored Manchester United tackles Everton; Blackpool meets West Bromwich, Preston North End meets Arsenal, and third division Millwall clashes with Birmingham City of the first division in the other matches.

Ski Conditions Ideal For City Enthusiasts

More than 50 members of the Victoria "Snow Birds" ski club, including 13 cadets from Royal Roads, donned their skis last weekend to take advantage of near-perfect conditions at their cabin on Mount Brenton, near Chemainus.

A thick crust of snow, formed by the low temperatures of the preceding week, was covered by a layer of powdered snow to make for fast runs. Cadet King Woodside of Calgary was one of the most impressive on the slopes with his speed and control.

Eleven of the 13 cadets, who were under the leadership of Professor John Keyes, staggered the hardiest of the "Snow Birds" by spending the night outside in army-issue sleeping bags.

"Our sleeping bags are guaranteed to 40 below," they explained, "so zero temperatures don't worry us."

If the weather holds, the fine conditions are expected next weekend.

Famed circus clown Emmett Kelly draws a bead on a "ball" held by Walter O'Malley, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who announced yesterday that Kelly had been signed by the Brooklyn club to "ease the tension at Ebbets Field." — (AP Photofax.)

New Job for Emmett Kelly

Dodgers Want More Laughs; Sign Renowned Circus Clown

BROOKLYN (AP)—The daffy Dodgers, whose outfielders sometimes get hit on the head with a fly ball and whose base runners have been known to wind up three on a bag, have decided they don't get enough laughs. So they have hired a clown.

With a completely straight face, Walter O'Malley, president of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, announced Monday he had signed Emmett Kelly, renowned clown of the Ringling Brothers circus.

Kelly's new job won't be to play baseball, O'Malley was quick to add, but, as he put it, "to ease the tension at Ebbets Field."

The bulbous-nosed laugh-getter will perform for the Dodgers strictly in character —that is, in his tattered suit and with the soulful, forlorn look that has brought guffaws from millions.

Kelly will join the club at spring training quarters in Vero Beach, Fla. He will make appearances wherever the team plays in exhibitions.

He also will join the faculty of the Dodgers' baseball school, preceding the actual training period. During the season he will be on the field before the games, helping amuse the customers.

O'Malley said Kelly's services will not be confined to the parent club. He will make visits to farm clubs such as Montreal, St. Paul and Fort Worth, Tex.

Kelly was with the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey circus for 36 years and became the most famous of clowns. He quit the group last spring as the outgrowth of a union dispute.

Edmonton Belter Lasts Out But Fullmer Wins Decision

Middleweight champion Gene Fullmer, utilizing the same slugging tactics that won him the title from Sugar Ray Robinson Jan. 2, swarmed over former Edmonton boxer Wilf Greaves in Salt Lake City last night for a unanimous 10-round decision in their nationally-televised, non-title bout.

Greaves, striving to make a good enough impression to win a possible title bout later in the year, started out slugging and opened a cut over the champion's left eye. However, Fullmer's handlers closed it, and although it bled slightly throughout the fight, it did not appear to give the champion any trouble.

Judges gave the fight to Fullmer, 6-3-1 and 7-1-2 on the round scoring basis, while referee Ken Schulsen saw it 9-1 for the champion.

City Bowlers Crippled As Fire Sweeps Alleys

By JIM TAYLOR

Fire that raced through Gibson's Bowladrome early Monday morning and caused damage estimated in the vicinity of $80,000 has left the bowling situation at the popular establishment in a state of utter confusion.

About 35 leagues have been left temporarily without a place to bowl, since the 20 alleys on the first floor of the building were severely burned. Manager Rod Hendry is at present trying to work out some arrangement whereby the leagues can either work on a swing-shift schedule and bowl on alternate weeks upstairs, or bowl in the afternoons.

"We're trying our darndest to make repairs as soon as possible, and in the meantime, we'll just have to get in as many leagues as we can," Hendry said last night. "We hope the bowlers realize what we're up against and that they will co-operate with us."

However, the big problem at the moment is the upcoming city tenpin championships, scheduled to begin Sunday night at Gibson's.

Since the championships have to be sanctioned by American Bowling Congress, they must be bowled on ABC-approved alleys. Only the bottom floor of alleys at Gibson's have received the ABC stamp of approval.

MEETING TONIGHT

Victoria Tenpin Bowlers' Association will hold a special meeting tonight to decide what course of action to take. If they decide to go ahead as scheduled using the alleys on the second floor, they will have to wire ABC headquarters in Milwaukee.

Meanwhile, three shifts of plasterers, painters, electricians and alleymen begin the task of replacing the alleys and making other repairs this morning.

"It all depends on how fast we get equipment from Winnipeg and Toronto," Hendry stated. "If that comes through in a hurry, we could be ready again within three or four weeks."

Extensive repairs must be made to 14 of the alleys on the first floor, and most of them have to be almost completely replaced. Damage to the other six was restricted to the cushions in the pits. Complete new alleys cost about $7,000 a pair.

Most of the damage to the alleys was caused by the intense heat, which cracked plate glass windows, blistered paint all through the building, and melted several trophies down to shapeless blobs of silver.

CIGARET BLAMED

A carelessly-discarded cigaret butt left in one of the pits is blamed for the fire, which was discovered about 12.30 by a policeman who saw the back doors blow out and a cloud of billowing smoke and flames shoof into the sky.

Fire was confined to the first floor due to some quick work by the Victoria Fire Department, but smoke from the slow-burning pit cushions caused considerable damage upstairs.

Fire department officials later stated that the building was so full of gas that a few moments delay in turning in the alarm would have meant total destruction of the building.

Hendry said the alleys were checked and locked up at 11.55 after the last tenpin league had completed bowling. The alarm was turned in at 12.27, but in the half-hour interval the fire took too great a hold to be stopped quickly.

Next games tonight: Brandon at Vancouver; VICTORIA at Edmonton.

The result put Calgary 13 points ahead of the last-place Warriors in the Eastern Division.

Warriors started with a rush and Wilkie drew goaltender Hank Bassen from the nets and fired over him at 3.02 of the first period.

However, Duke evened the count at 11.54 of the same session and added his second goal at 15.52 of the second.

Duke's first goal came after several minutes of hard-hitting, fast hockey when he rode straight in on Ed Johnston and found an opening from six feet out.

Duke pulled almost the same play that gave him his first goal, grabbing the puck as it bounced off a Warrior stick and sailing in again to fire it into the net knee high from just outside the crease.

Seven Rinks Named For B.C. Playdowns

Seven of the eight zone champions who will compete in the provincial British Consols finals at Nelson early next month to decide the B.C. rink which will play in the Canadian curling championship at Kingston have been declared, and so far the only repeater is Dick Topping.

Topping, who played out of the International Curling Club at Osoyoos last year and represented the South Central Zone, this year will represent the North Central Zone with a Kamloops rink.

He won his way into the final Sunday by defeating Craig Rutherford's Revelstoke combination, 11-5, in the final of the double knockout zone final at Kamloops. Topping won the "A" competition while Rutherford won the "B" competition by edging Nick Marsh of Kamloops, 11-10, in the final.

Curling with Topping are Glen Price, John Adams and Bernie Fellingham.

Also reaching the B.C. finals on Sunday was a Kimberley rink skipped by Ray Matheson, who won the East Kootenay zone final. Matheson takes over from Harold Jordon, who represented B.C. in the Brier last year.

CROFT MAKES IT

Replacing Topping as the representative from the South Central zone is a Summerland rink led by the well-known veteran, Bill Croft. An early favorite, from the tough West Kootenay zone, is the Nelson rink led by Milt Ryalls. This zone was represented a year ago by Len Peerless, also of Nelson.

Veteran Clarence Larson skipped his Chilliwack rink to victory in the Fraser Valley zone, taking over from Bill Hoffman's Dairyland quartet, which was unable to enter the competition this year.

A rink from the Capilano Winter Club, entered by Tom Bellamy and skipped by Tom Coates, will represent the Vancouver Island zone.

Last year, it was Gordon Russell at Vancouver and Victoria's Tony Gutoski on Vancouver Island.

Still to be declared, this week, is the winner of the northern zone. The final is scheduled for Prince George and Len Harper's Quesnel ring, which represented the zone last year, is given a good chance of repeating. Harper's ring is intact.

'Hungry' Golfers Have Toughest Time on Pro Trail

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Harry Moffitt and Ed Carter were chatting about golf, a natural subject as Moffitt is president of the PGA and Carter arranges the tournament schedule for the touring pros.

"You know why some of the younger players on the tour have a tough time?" Carter remarked. "They're hungry."

This was a switch, as you hear a lot about hungry ball clubs and hungry fighters, the idea being that if their stomachs are growling a little they are better performers. Wealth and ease curb their initiative.

"In golf," Carter continued, "you can't let off steam as you can when you're in a more active sport. You can't release the energy, run harder or hit harder or otherwise ease tension.

"A young golfer starting out with little money knows he has to win to pay his living expenses.

"In one tournament one of these young fellows was leading after the first two rounds, and somebody asked Ben Hogan if he thought the young fellow would win. "I don't know," Hogan answered. "I don't know how much money he has in the bank."

Moffit nodded in agreement. "I heard of a case where a young fellow was having his troubles on the tour, and a group of friends told him they would stake him for eight tournaments," he said.

"The fellow won the second tournament, and after that they didn't have to stake him any more."

Even the best of them have trouble with their nerves. And you can't always tell by looking at a man what state his nerves are in. Sam Snead was explaining that.

"You look at Lloyd Mangrom and you think he hasn't a nerve in his body," he was saying. "But inside he's all butterflies. Jimmy Demaret seems carefree. But if you are close to him, you know what's happening inside."

Someone asked Sam about himself.

"Me," he laughed, cleanching his fists and making churning motions around the stomach area. "I'm always like this."

Maybe some benevolent soul should subsidize these young golfers, much as a promising athlete is given a college scholarship. When expenses are running about $250 a week and income about $50, somethings got to give.

Captures Thunderbird Meet

Veteran Demaret Turns Playoff into Shambles

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UP)—Old Jimmy Demaret, a touring professional for 22 years, gave the youngsters a lesson in the technique of winning playoffs Monday when he walloped Mike Souchak and young Ken Venturi to capture the $15,000 Thunderbird invitational golf tournament.

Getting a jump on the boys when he birdied the first three holes, the 45-year-old Demaret never looked back as he carded a four-under-par 67. Souchak came second with a 75 and Venturi ended up third with a 76.

The three men had ended the regulation 72 holes Sunday in a deadlock after taking 273 strokes apiece.

"Never tanked so many putts in my life," said Demaret to the gallery of about 1,000 as he walked off the 18th green which, incidentally, he three-putted.

Jimmy was out in 32 with birdie putts of 9, 10, 36, 4 and 12 feet. He came back in 35 with birdie putts of 12 and 18 feet.

But while jaunty Jimmy was having the time of his life in winning his third Palm Springs event—there have been only six—the other boys were having their troubles.

Souchak, who had canned a 45-foot putt on the final hole Sunday to gain the deadlock, developed a bad case of "hookitis" Monday. He hit four hook shots on the first nine and came in with a two-over-par 37. On the 10th hole he hooked a ball out of bounds and on the 14th he hooked into a trap to lose another stroke. He wound up the back nine with a 38.

But Venturi, trying for a victory in only his second tournament as a professional, couldn't do anything right.

He pushed a shot out of bounds on the third hole—one that cleared the fence by a matter of inches.

On the 15th hole he wound up with a double-bogey seven after missing the ball completely in attempting to chip out from behind a tree. Then he sprayed his tee shot on the 16th hole into the bush on the first bounce, landed in the pocket of a spectator wearing an overcoat.

The man walked a couple of steps, felt the ball and tossed it out where it ended up behind a tree. Venturi ended with a bogey on that hole—the stroke that cost him a tie for second-place money.

Stan Leonard, former Vancouver pro who had won third-place money in two previous tournaments, placed 10th Sunday to earn $290. He fired his second straight 71 to wind up with a 278 total.

Island Puck Race Tightens As Combines Upset Alberni

NANAIMO (Special)—The sizzling race for the Suburban Hockey League championship and the right to advance to the Colonist Cup playdowns tightened up Sunday when the last-place Nanaimo-Ladysmith Combines knocked off the pace-setting Port Alberni Flyers.

Combines, who moved to within one point of third-place Lake Cowichan Bruins, held Flyers scoreless until early in the third period in grabbing a 3-2 decision in the feature of play at the Nanaimo Civic arena.

ALBERNI RALLIES

Two first-period goals by Bill Haslam and a second-period marker by Arne Johnson boosted the Combines to a 3-0 lead before Port Alberni rallied for two third-period goals.

Port Alberni's lead shrank to one point as the Courtenay Glaciers gained a 4-1 victory over the defending champion Bruins. The Glaciers were never headed, scoring once in the first period and twice in the second frame before veteran Red Carr put Bruins on the scoresheet at 10.17 of the final frame.

Wings Boost Unbeaten Streak; Lead Canyens by Three Points

Detroit Red Wings, it appears, aren't at all ready to concede that Montreal Canadiens began a lengthy reign as National Hockey League champions when they dethroned the Detroit club last season.

Winners of a record-breaking seven straight NHL championships, the Wings were counted out after finishing a well-beaten second last season. Canadiens, everyone said, would probably rule as long.

Bolstered by the young talent developed in the Western Hockey League at Edmonton, the Wings have come back sturdily this season. Winners of their last five games and unbeaten in their last seven, they are on the top by three points with a game in hand over the Canyens.

Sunday night, Detroit completed a weekend sweep by bouncing the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-1. WHL grads Norm Ullman, Earl Reibel and Johnny Bucyk did the scoring and Glenn Hall stopped 31 of 32 shots.

FINE RECORD

Hall lost his shutout in the last minute of the first period but stopped the last 21 shots on his goal. He has been scored on 12 times in the last seven games.

Meanwhile Canadiens, who have been handicapped all season by injuries, took an unexpected thumping, 5-2, at Boston.

Winless in their previous six games, the Bruins snapped out of their slump for a badly-needed two points. League leaders not so long ago, the Boston club had not only dropped to third place but both Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers were getting close enough to threaten a playoff position.

Don Simmons, rookie replacement for Terry Sawchuk, played steadily in the Boston nets. He stopped 27 shots, including 23 in the last two periods.

Canadiens' Jacques Plante saw his goals-against average and shots-stopped percentage tumble as Bruins struck early in each period to get five goals past him on 22 shots.

STRIKE EARLY

Boston opened the scoring at 30 seconds, took a 2-1 lead at 8.24 of the first period. They added to their margin with goals at one minute and 2.39 of the second period and completed their scoring at 2.39 of the third period.

New York Rangers also made it a successful weekend by nipping the luckless Chicago Black Hawks, 3-2, to pull within a point of the fourth-place Leafs.

Opening lead: ◇ 10

North and South were fortunate to avoid the six-club contract at which the moderately bad break would have defeated them, and to reach the six-heart contract where the slam was makeable though the trump break was even worse. The key bid in the auction was North's bid of four hearts. He realized that a rebid of four diamonds would put South to a guess that might result in a final no-trump contract. And the quality of his club suit was such that he also wished to avoid getting to six clubs.

Strictly speaking, South's bid of four no-trumps was not a Blackwood ace-asking bid. However, North read it as such, and South understood North's reply to indicate two aces or better trump support, so he went on to bid the slam.

South walked a tight rope in which the slightest error in timing would have plunged him to defeat, but the diamond opening helped guide him to the correct play. He won the trick with dummy's ace and returned the queen. East covered and South ruffed. After taking two top spades, a third round was trumped with dummy's eight of hearts. Declarer returned to his hand with the king of clubs to lead his fourth spade. West had to follow suit and East was unable to overtrump dummy's nine. Next the ace of clubs was led and when everybody followed suit, the contract was in the bag.

Dummy's jack of diamonds was led. If East had been out of diamonds, South would make his slam by trumping with the ten of hearts. When East followed suit, South discarded his losing club. West trumped, but though his remaining cards were all trumps he could not win another trick.

WINNING POINTS:

South's bidding had marked him with a singleton diamond at most. Hence West's diamond lead and East's prompt cover of the second diamond strongly hinted that a third round of diamonds played too early would be disastrous.

Sandys Arrives

NEW YORK (AP) — British Defence Minister Duncan Sandys arrived Saturday for Washington talks with an emphasis on guided missiles—that could lead to a change in British military strategy.

There is no doubt, Sandys told reporters at Idlewild airport, that Britain is spending "more on defence than we can reasonably afford."

He said Britain has begun a thorough study of its strategic situation and new scientific developments with a view to cutting military expenditures.

He indicated that British military manpower definitely would be reduced.

He made clear that his discussions with Defence Secretary Wilson would centre on guided missile development.

'The Girl He Left Behind'

By BRUCE LOWTHER

The script is by Marion Hargrove and while it has a narrator whose lines are often corny, there are also several amusing situations and a neatly written love scene wherein Miss Wood insists that "passion isn't enough."

At times the comedy loses some [illegible] a couple that begin [illegible] still satisfactory ending.

There are several good character [illegible] including an unidentified cop as a platoon sergeant and Henry Jones as a re-enlistee.

Cold Idles 800

PORT ALBERNI — Continued cold weather has closed Alberni Plywoods Division of MacMillan & Bloedel Limited, throwing more than 800 employees out of work.

The plant was closed for three weeks over the holiday season and had operated on a four-day week basis until icy conditions interfered with operations.

Logging is also being curtailed by weather conditions and the number of claims for unemployment insurance at the local office is far above the average for the season of the year. It is expected the figure will reach almost 2,000 with the addition of the plywood workers.

Law Intention Remains Secret

By R. O. MARRION

Dormant for months, the issue of six-day versus 5½-day shopping may soon become lively again in Victoria.

... But a strong indication that new legislation is planned was given last summer when the government, rejecting a Victoria request that six-day shopping be allowed in the city through order-in-council said that it is much wiser to consider your proposal in relation to the whole rather than deal with the problem in a piecemeal manner at this time.

... It means the government will consider the whole matter at the next session and probably bring in legislation dealing with it, the mayor said.

... The question of allowing Victoria stores to stay open a full six days a week was brought to the fore last spring by the Six Day Shopping Week Committee which sought action in time for the tourist season.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

This being a quiet day, both for TV news and programs, it's time to evaluate the effect of channel 12's increased power on reception of other channels in this area.

After chatting with RCA Victor's Ray Tate and other TV men, this problem is a faint but persistent windshield wiper on channel 11. This exists on my own set, a two-year-old Philco 300 located in north Hillside, plus an occasional fuzziness of sound.

"My father's an expert in more categories than your father!"

Similar reports have come from such scattered areas as James Bay, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Cook Street, Gordon Head, but in all areas there seems to be no trouble on channel 11. Easiest solution seems to be an open stub, an antenna lead-in wire, razored off at 11 5 inches or thereabouts.

★ ★ ★

Saanich voters' Association emphasizes that their TV protest meetings in Lake Hill hall Thursday night is not aimed at raising a petition to be sent to the CBC, but purely to allow discussion of interference problems caused by CHEK-TV. However the TV interference committee which asked the voters group to call the meeting, will attempt to get the petition started there.

Not a single special tonight. Most interesting program should be the Anglican monastery film on channels 2 and 6 at 10 p.m. Three old movies with at least historic values are to be seen—details below.

TV BITS: When Almanac comes to town next month, it will visit the Crystal pool Feb. 5, for the water trapeze act from HMCS Naden and the Aqua Nymphs ballet. Next night, guests will be Speaker Tom Irwin and members of a fashion show.

State of New York is considering purchase of a pilot educational television station in Albany, the capital city. . . . An Illinois court has thrown out the claim of the Illinois (private) Broadcasters Association that it is illegal for the state to operate an educational station with state tax funds. . . . Mistakes in TV columns and listings are inevitable, but Saturday night was horrible. Channel 11 was the source of the information that Bob Hope would visit Perry Como; channel 5 the source for the new Air Time show and for the confusion about Lawrence Welk (he'll be back next Saturday).

Today's Best

5.00 p.m.—Award-winning CBC show Magic of Music returns, starring strings of the Ottawa Philharmonic (channels 2 and 6).

8.00 p.m.—CHEK-TV adds the Chevy Show to its schedule, but unfortunately starts with a lemon, the recent Dinah Shore horror with Art Carney, Perry Como, Stubby Kaye (channels 2 and 6).

9.00 To Tell The Truth is always good (channels 11 and 13).

9.30—Franchot Tone in "Throw Me a Rope" on Kaiser Hour (channel 4); Red Skelton's guest is James Dunn in a Cauliflower McPugg bit (channel 11).

10.00—"Poverty, Chastity, Obedience," a BBC film of an Anglican monastery near Huddersfield (channels 2 and 6).

Sport Special

9.00 Texas wrestling (channel 13).
11.15 Bowling (channel 2).

Movie Lineup

10.00 "Speed Limited," channel 5.
12.00 "Anything for a Laugh," channel 4.
12.40 "Golden Marie," channel 5.
1.30— "Moontide," channel 12. Dane Clark, Ethel Barrymore.
2.05 "Stranger on the Third Floor," channel 13. Pete Lorre.
2.15 "Love Story," channel 2, Stewart Granger.
3.00 "Col. Blimp," channel 5, part two, Deborah Kerr.
3.30 "Behind Green Lights," channel 12.
3.45 "Slippy McGee," channel 4.
7.30—"Big Gamble," channel 13, a 1931 film with Bill Boyd, Zasu Pitts, Warner Oland. Again at 1 a.m.
10.05 "Lawless Rider," channel 11.
10.10 "Emergency Call," channel 13, a 1933 film with Bill Boyd and Betty Furness, before she sold her soul for a mess of refrigerators.
10.15 "That Man From Tangiers," channel 12.
10.15 "Bill of Divorcement," channel 2, a 1932 film with John Barrymore, Billie Burke and a new star called Katharine Hepburn. Best of the night.

'Faulty' Meters Found in Order

Householders worrying that their electricity meters were inaccurate and costing them money were advised yesterday to relax.

E. R. Teece, district inspector for the federal department of trade and commerce, who checks gas and electricity meters in Victoria, said most "faulty" meters reported turned out to be accurate and the only loss to the consumer was the checking fee.

"Last year we had 11 complaints," he said. "Of these, 10 were well within the permissible error of 3 per cent fast or slow—the average error was 0.8 per cent."

The 11th meter was 4.2 per cent inaccurate, he said. If the meter had been wrong for three months and the weekly power bill was $10, the refund to the consumer would be only $1.25.

"The 10 consumers whose meters were accurate paid a total of $20.35," Mr. Teece said.

Meters are tested regularly each six years as a matter of course and few of them are found to have varied in their accuracy.

Mr. Teece said one meter was found last year which had not been checked since 1927. It was found to be still less than 3 per cent inaccurate, the permissible limit.

Navy Needs

29 Recruits From Victoria

Royal Canadian Navy (Reserve), HMCS Malahat, opened a recruiting drive here last week to continue through February.

Quota for the Victoria division is 29 recruits of either sex, said Lt.-Cmdr. L. J. Fuller, recruiting officer. Recruits must be between the ages of 16 and 29 and in good condition.

"Open House" is being held at HMCS Malahat every Thursday night starting at 8 p.m. until the end of February.

The recruiting drive is nationwide with Canada's 22 reserve naval divisions seeking to increase strength by a total of over 1,000 men and Wrens.

The present manpower figure of the RCN (N) is approximately 6,000 officers and men. This figure includes 700 Wrens.

Young recruits who join the dry land "ship" HMCS Malahat normally spend Monday nights training and two weeks during the summer at the Great Lakes Training Command, Hamilton, or other naval commands.

Heart Disease

Convicts Test Theory

By JAMES M. QUIGLEY

PRETORIA, South Africa (NANA) — In apartheid-conscious South Africa a group of white and black men daily eat together in a unique experiment providing new insight into the major killer of the 20th century —heart disease.

These volunteers, all convicts, have agreed to the terms of the experiment. It is expected to last about 18 months under necessarily rigid controls.

Results may determine what part fats play in causing hardening of the arteries and the coronary thrombosis which often follows. What kind of fats are dangerous is an even more important question.

The experiment is based on the discovery that animal fats increase blood cholesterol which may clog arteries, while vegetable fats reduce it.

The saturated acids found in animal fats are solids at room temperature, while the unsaturated ones are liquids. Beef fat, as illustration, is solid because of the high content of saturated fatty acids, while olive oil is liquid because it is made up chiefly of unsaturated acids.

Realizing that the ideal conditions needed for the lengthy experiment could only be maintained in a prison, Dr. P. J. Kloppers of Pretoria University secured permission from prison authorities to call for volunteers.

From two different prisons came 30 whites and 120 blacks. They agreed to co-operate despite warnings that at times the food would be distasteful as part of the experiment, and that there would be no rewards. There would be no "time off."

Whether the heart-diet experiment ever contributes much to the study of heart disease, one beneficial result already has been noted. The morale of the group is high, for the convicts feel they now have a purpose in life.

One of the interesting aspects about the experiment has a connection with heart-diet tests made by American medical groups. The American groups noted that coronary disease is rare among African natives, who subsist mostly on "mealies," a corn-meal porridge which can be considered a low-fat diet.

For the first two months the volunteers maintained their normal prison duties and ate the usual prison fare. All the men, white and black, eat together, however, and each man's food intake is carefully noted. Frequent blood tests are made together with other clinical examinations, including electrocardiograms.

When two months elapsed, the diet was changed so that about 10 per cent of the daily calorie intake was supplied by animal fats. After several months the diet again was changed with roughly the same percentage of fats being used, but this time they are of the vegetable variety.

Following this stage there will be a full evaluation of the results. Once certain trends are evident, the final year of experimentation will be set up.

Maritime Museum Plans to Expand

The Naval Maritime Museum at Esquimalt is growing so rapidly and so many people are visiting it that enlarged quarters have become necessary.

At the annual meeting of the museum, in HMC Dockyard at Esquimalt, attended by Rear-Admiral H. E. Pullen, the museum's chairman, Lt.-Cmdr. Crawford Mahon outlined plans to take over an old red brick house next to the museum on Esquimalt Road at Signal Hill.

The two buildings will be connected by a covered ramp. Last year, Lt.-Cmdr. Mahon reported close to 3,500 visitors to the museum, which now has more than 1,000 exhibits.

Officers elected were: Rear-Admiral Pullen, president; Commodore P. D. Budge, J. B. Caldwell, vice-presidents; Lt.-Cmdr. Mahon, chairman; Victor Day, secretary-treasurer, E. S. McGowan, R. H. Roy, H. D. McFarland, Lt.-Cmdr. L. Farrington, board members; Lieut. E. A. MacFayden, curator.

Lt.-Cmdr. Mahon pointed out that the museum is preserving exhibits related to marine history of this part of Canada.

Next museum project will be to have models constructed of fishing vessels of the B.C. coast, from the earliest Indian canoes to the present high-powered vessels.

Among the new exhibits is a model of HMS Chatham, the original of which was on this coast before 1800 with Capt. Vancouver's expedition. This was made in England and presented to the museum by officers and men of HMCS Ontario and HMCS Venture cadets, when they were in Antigua, did excavations near Nelson's Dockyard, and found six cannon balls of various sizes, which they brought home to Esquimalt and presented to the museum.

Not Extinct After All

Fierce Tasmanian Tiger Survives in Wild Land

SYDNEY (NANA) — Three men flying low in a helicopter on geological survey over a rugged part of western Tasmania recently rubbed their eyes in wonder when they saw one of the world's rarest animals — a Tasmanian tiger.

This most spectacular of all Australian pouched animals has been known variously as marsupial wolf, tiger, hyena and even zebra-wolf, but is correctly termed Thylacine.

The last definite news of a Tasmanian tiger was in 1948; since then, absence of other reports led naturalists to believe the animal was extinct, until the current find.

From fossilized remains scientists know it was once fairly widely distributed on the Australian mainland, but it was extinct here before the coming of white men.

FEROCIOUS OUTLAW

In remote Tasmania, it was fairly common when the first settlers arrived 150 years ago, but its ferocious attacks on sheep and poultry caused it to be outlawed.

Its habit of making one meal of a single sheep brought terror to pioneer Tasmanian sheep men. The Tasmanian tiger would desert the carcass after having sucked the blood from the jugular vein and eaten the victim's kidney fat.

After the government placed a $3 price on each tiger's head, shepherds hunted it mercilessly.

The tiger retired to the rocky fastness of the wildest parts of Tasmania, where it preyed on its natural quarries, Kangaroos and Wallabies.

Many expeditions have sought the tiger in recent years, but the sighting from the air is the first definite news in eight years that the animal still lives.

An expedition spent five months in 1945-46 tracking down a solitary specimen, only to have it escape the night it was caught in a carefully-laid trap.

The animal measures about four feet from its snout to the beginning of its 20-inch tail. It gets its name from the 16 blackish-brown stripes across the hind part of its back.

Apart from its striping, it more closely resembles a wolf than a tiger. It has a slim body, covered with tawny grey fur, and a long, slender muzzle.

Its chief interest to naturalists is that it is one of the rarest of those rare animals —the carnivorous marsupials. The female's pouch, like that of the few other marsupials that move on all fours, opens backward, not forward as in the kangaroo and other marsupials that hop.

The tiger's litter usually numbers four, and the young remain in the pouch for three months. Soon after, they start hunting on their own account.

The tiger has tremendously powerful jaws and is capable of tearing itself free of steel traps by using its teeth and claws. When excited, it emits a rapid coughing bark.

The Tasmanian tiger is strikingly depicted on the island state's coat of arms. Superstitious settlers regarded the animal with dread, killing it at every opportunity and nailing the heads to barn doors.

The animal is totally protected now.

B.C. Polio Fund Needs Volunteers

B.C. Polio Fund office in Victoria needs volunteers to canvass in the Sooke, Port Renfrew, Otter Point and Jordan River areas.

Anyone wishing to help canvass during the week of Feb. 11 to 16 is asked to phone collect to the fund office at 5-4489 as soon as possible.

Officials said the greatest need is for "area mothers" who will organize the drive in their areas. Proper identification and equipment will be mailed out to the collectors.

The Polio Fund, sponsored by the Kinsmen clubs of B.C., will be campaigning until Feb. 16 to raise $400,000.

The money will be used to set up a hospital for handicapped children in Vancouver, start a rehabilitation school at the University of B.C., finance the regular polio care program and provide immediate remedial care to handicapped children whose parents cannot afford proper treatment.

Kiwanis to Query Ottawa About Donations to 'Village'

Victoria Kiwanis Club will ask the federal government to clarify the position of Kiwanis Village regarding deduction of taxes for donations to the society.

Action was prompted by statements made in the House of Commons recently by Harold Winch, CCF MP for Vancouver East, in which a complaint was lodged that no tax exemptions were being permitted for voluntary organizations providing low-rental housing for the aged.

SOME DOUBT

There is some doubt as to whether the societies are charitable organizations within the definition of the Income Tax Act, according to a government statement last year. If they are not donations could not be exempted from taxes.

Kiwanis president Harvey F. Bailey said yesterday that there might be some differences in the original certification of the societies in question. But he added that "we were careful when we set up (Kiwanis Village) to see we were organized as a charitable organization under the Societies Act."

NON-TAXABLE

The Victoria club will also ask Ottawa to confirm assurances given to the club in a letter in 1952 that donations would continue on a non-taxable basis.

Mr. Winch said he learned last year "much to our surprise" that claim had been rejected by the income tax department.

"For approximately a year I have been appealing this decision, but to no avail," he said.

"I sincerely hope that there has been no change as far as Kiwanis Village is concerned," he continued, "and if not, Mr. Bailey will understand why I would now query the discrimination."

'B.C.'s Growth Impeded'

Liberal Arrogance Lashed

An alarmingly dangerous situation has developed in Canada through mismanagement in Ottawa, Labor Minister Lyle Wicks said in a radio broadcast over the CBC last night.

He charged the federal Liberal government with "restricting development in this province.

Mr. Wicks lashed out at everything Liberal and said public opinion was held in contempt by the federal government.

"Under the barnacles, under the cloak of infallibility, under the thick hide of arrogance, all respect (for the federal government) has rotted away," said the minister. "And gone with it is all ability to gauge the public's requirements realistically."

Mr. Wicks criticized Ottawa policies toward the housing shortage, the Trans-Canada Highway, a national health care plan, unemployment and apprenticeship.
